

BRITISH MUSEUM (NATURAL HISTORY),

CROMWELL ROAD,

LONDON: S.W

14 April 1886

My dear De Gray,

I am able to send you what is better than a tracing - a specimen of Menzies' Calltha.

I lately discovered the remains of Menzies' Herb in in the Free Church College, Edin: where it was of no use - and I secured that the whole should be sent to the Museum in return for a narrow collection of British Plants. There are a few Phanerogams in the materials thus obtained - though they are chiefly cellular plants - and among them is the Caltha. I propose to go over the whole of the Phano^{us} and alongside the duplications for you - and as an earnest I enclose the Caltha.

With kindest regards to Mrs Gray believe me
Ever faithfully yours
Wm. arrivins
